

Go the Distance

MARYLAND FARMERS ARE IN IT FOR THE LONG HAUL WHEN IT COMES TO PROTECTING THE CHESAPEAKE BAY. Keeping manure away from streams is a top priority. Today's farmers use the latest science to guide when, where, and how much manure to use as a crop fertilizer.

That's why this spring, you'll see—and smell—manure being hauled from chicken farms to other types of farms and businesses that can safely recycle this valuable resource without harming the Bay. Learn more at mda.maryland.gov/manure

Maryland
Department of Agriculture

